

Living in Bluefield

Living in Bluefield, located in Mercer County, West Virginia means being part of a great and diverse community. Children and young adults attend excellent schools and colleges and have opportunities to participate in a variety of activities in the arts and music. The school-based athletic programs have a strong tradition of winning championships and producing outstanding scholar-athletes. The City has an abundant park system, which includes a 14 mile trail complex. The City also owns and operates a family oriented fitness center which offers individual and group exercise programming for all ages.

With beautiful natural surroundings and a variety of America's favorite pastimes, the City of Bluefield offers a special quality of life and provides a secure location for developing families and a comfortable home for the elderly.